

There is one sport
that British Columbia
does not want the world to know about.

Ban the trophy hunt.

In less than two months the BC government will open the sport hunting season for bears in the internationally celebrated Great Bear Rainforest. This coastal rainforest supports a diverse and globally rare population of bears, from the rare white Spirit bear and the genetically distinct Haida black bear to the threatened grizzly bear.

Trophy hunting of bears is not supported by the overwhelming majority of British Columbians and is threatening a far more lucrative bear viewing industry. Coastal First Nations oppose the trophy hunt for cultural and spiritual reasons.

Write or call the Provincial government and let them know that it is time to end the trophy hunt of bears in the Great Bear Rainforest.
