HUMANE SOCIETY INTERNATIONAL CANADA

Petition addressed to the National Assembly

In Quebec, the situation concerning puppy mills is unacceptable. The "Animal Health Protection Act" (P-42) and the manner in which it is enforced is not adequate to protect the welfare of companion animals. We formally request this grievance be redressed.

Considering that the Quebec government has both the legal responsibility and the moral duty to ensure the protection of consumers and animals.

Considering that a 2008 survey of all provincial animal protection laws in Canada demonstrates that Quebec scores lowest, Quebec's enforcement of the laws is inadequate, and these laws contain no acceptable minimum standards to protect animals.

Considering that Quebec SPCAs, with 137 years of experience, provide invaluable infrastructure, expertise, and qualified inspectors to the Quebec government for the enforcement of laws to protect animals. And Quebec SPCAs are very well known and well regarded by the general public as institutions that are dedicated to sheltering animals and enforcing the law.

THEREFORE, WE THE UNDERSIGNED, request that the Quebec National Assembly (1) revise the "Animal Health Protection Act" (P-42) to include stronger penalties; (2) adopt a resolution mandating Quebec SPCAs and its affiliates with full power to apply the law concerning the well-being and the safety of animals; and (3) provide adequate funding to Quebec SPCAs to do so.
